Cautious business prospects for rest of 2011 amid uncertain macroeconomic development. Unemployment situation in the US, anti-inflationary measures to rein in inflation in China and concerns over Euro sovereign debt crisis to impact global growth, demand for consumer electronics and, in turn, spending across the semiconductor & electronics manufacturing supply chain.

Excess inventories situation across the semiconductor and electronics supply chain likely to continue into 2H 2011 and that could potentially impact capital spending plans at foundries as well as memory players

Despite the challenging global economic outlook, SEMI (mid-year consensus forecast) projects 12.1% growth for semiconductor equipment sales to US$44.33 billion for 2011 led by Wafer Processing equipment which is expected to grow 18.8% to US$35.1 billion.
